America's Role In Vietnam War Traced for Club
John Eyed, Allentown public relations official, this week spoke to the West Allentown Kiwanis Club at the Village Inn on "Our Involvement in Vietnam." Eyed told his audience he is a "student, not an authority on our involvement," but said he had ample opportunity as a reporter in the war-torn Far East nation to develop some interesting facts. Eyed said an American cardinal, a radical and an agent of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) are responsible for current involvement of the United States in the Asian conflict. Eyed traced the history of Vietnam from the days when it was part of French Indochina until 1954, when it won its freedom only to be overrun by the Viet Minh, resulting in the split of North Vietnam from South Vietnam. He told of religious differences in the country, of the backwardness of the people, and of problems which must be overcome to win a permanent peace.
